

KEER2020 doctoral colloquium

During the KEER2020 conference, the doctoral colloquium will be a unique moment to discuss questions, challenges and experiences related to master, doctoral studies... and beyond!

The doctoral colloquium provides an opportunity for post-graduate students (master and doctoral candidates) to share with the Kansei community at large about their own experience and their own questions about their studies: What is expected of a doctoral thesis? Why doing a doctoral study? What is advised to become a good doctoral candidate? And what is after in the industry and in the academia?

These questions will be discussed during the post-doctoral colloquium, by students, doctoral candidates, industrials, researchers and professors. All are welcomed.

The doctoral colloquium is an informal moment to share among new members of the KEER community, its future actors, and its current active and experienced members. This encounter is aiming to be sociable and constructive, and to support networking within the KEER community.

Where: online, information will be sent upon registration

When: September 7th, 2020 | 16:40 ~ 18:40 (Japan Standard Time)

Registration is required by August 28th, 2020.

Please contact Pierre Lévy - plevy@tue.nl - for more information.

KEER2020

The KEER2020 doctoral colloquium is organised by Pierre Lévy, Eindhoven University of Technology, The Netherlands
Lluís Marco Almagro, Universitat Politècnica de Catalunya · BarcelonaTech (UPC), Spain